

More Canadians Speak Out on Bill C-32, Deadline Today

Monday January 31, 2011

Today is the final day for Canadians to submit their comments on Bill C-32 to the legislative committee examining the bill. New posts of submissions include Heather Morrison linking open access with copyright reform and Dylan McCall with a library perspective. Meanwhile, CBC.ca covers the politics behind the bill and MTV News tries to get younger Canadians interested in copyright reform (Clip 5).